Final information that you'd like to highlight/provide that wasn't asked above?

I like that bicycling can be a community connection on a very localized level such as your particular street, but also creates a wider community in your neighborhood, your city, and around the world. Biking in San Francisco has felt safer, more accessible, and a lot more fun than when I started biking over 10 years ago, which is in no small part due to the work of the SFBC.
